Summary (as of May 10, 2002)

Commercial Driver's License Devolution Act of 2002 - Amends Federal transportation law to authorize an individual who has not passed commercial motor vehicle written and driving tests meeting certain minimum Federal standards to operate a commercial motor vehicle solely within the borders of a State (intrastate) if such individual meets State-prescribed minimum standards for fitness for operating a commercial motor vehicle and has passed written and driving tests meeting those same standards. Requires States to test the fitness of commercial motor vehicle operators who operate intrastate, including the passing of a written and driving test, consistent with either the minimum standards prescribed by the Secretary of Transportation or State-prescribed minimum standards.
