Recognizes the outstanding and unique role that the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory (Berkeley, California) has played over the past 75 years in the scientific and technological advancement of our Nation and of the world.

Praises the Laboratory on its great flexibility and foresight in moving from being one of the Nation's original prominent physics laboratories to a highly diversified scientific laboratory of world prominence in a variety of fields.

Congratulates the Laboratory's dedicated employees past and present who have worked to make the institution one of the greatest research resources in the world.

Encourages the laboratory to continue its leadership in pushing the scientific frontiers as we work to address unprecedented challenges whose solutions are grounded in science and technology.
