Expresses the sense of the Senate that:

- civic and government education is essential to the well-being of the constitutional government of the United States,
- comprehensive and formal instruction in civics and government would provide students with a basis for understanding the rights and responsibilities of citizens under such government,
- elementary and secondary schools are encouraged to offer courses on the history and theories of such government, and
- civics and government teachers are well served by having access to professional development programs that enhance their capacity to provide effective civic and government education in the classroom.
