Summary (as of Jun 26, 2020)

This resolution expresses the sense of the House of Representatives that

- the harm, trauma, and deaths of black women must be recognized alongside those of black men;
- the position of black women is unique in this country and therefore deserves specific, focused intervention to bring about equality of access, opportunity, and justice;
- any legislation passed in the House to remedy racial inequities, especially those in the criminal justice system, must include reforms to address concerns for black women; and
- the creation of a commission to study the status of black women and girls would aid in reducing social and systemic barriers and identifying reforms that would encourage more fair and equal treatment.
