FEMA Tribal Coordinator Act

This bill requires the President to appoint a tribal response coordinating officer immediately following the declaration of a multi-state major disaster or emergency.

The duties of such officer shall include

- conducting an assessment of relief most urgently needed in consultation with all affected Indian tribal governments;
- in the case of a public health emergency, working with the Indian Health Service to conduct outreach to tribally operated health programs to assess needs;
- establishing a liaison within each Bureau of Indian Affairs Regional Office and each Indian Health Service Area Office;
- coordinating administration of relief to Indian tribal governments and tribal healthcare providers (including, in the event of a public health emergency, distributions from the Strategic National Stockpile, and establishing a single point of contact for tribal requests for assistance); and
- coordinating assistance with submission of reimbursement requests and grant applications.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) shall consider a request from an Indian tribal government in the same manner as a request from a state.
