Summary (as of Apr 5, 2021)

Strengthening Manufacturing in America through Responsible Transitions to Electric Act or the SMART Electric Act

This bill directs the Department of Energy (DOE) to establish a program that provides rebates to industrial or manufacturing facilities, commercial buildings, or utilities or energy service companies for energy efficiency upgrades. Specifically, DOE may provide rebates for expenditures made by such entities for energy efficient electrotechnology that is used to replace a fossil fuel-fired technology.
