Summary (as of Sep 24, 2021)

This resolution condemns Belarusian authorities' assault on freedom of expression and human rights in Belarus since the August 2020 presidential election.

The resolution also calls for the immediate release of journalists, cultural figures, and dissidents currently held as political prisoners in Belarus.

Furthermore, the resolution calls on the Biden Administration to

- support initiatives to assist survivors of torture and other human rights violations from Belarus, including by working with allies in the region to grant them protection and providing avenues for them and their families to access safety in the United States;
- examine all available accountability options for violators of human rights and fundamental freedoms; and
- demand that Belarus cooperate fully with international partners and organizations, including the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights.

Finally, the resolution supports the aspirations of the Belarusian people in their struggle for freedom and human rights.
